

User:Karel_Haegeman

As a scientific officer at the Institute for Prospective Technological Studies of the European Commission, his activities focus on both advancing and applying foresight methodologies in the European Union. He has masters in business economics and in marketing, and has previously worked in innovation policy, general economic policy and market research.

